DANEGER! on Truck Means Just That!

Danger posted on the side of a truck means just what it says to motorists and other truck drivers on the highway and when a big Chesley Transportation semi rig pulled out of the yard at American Chemical Inc. Tuesday afternoon it was so marked — DANGER!

The six drums chained in the center of the truck bed were filled with rocket fuel that had been distilled in the Torrance plant, located at 1206 W. 196th St. by a process developed by W. P. Guidry, owner of American Chemsoiv.

Before the load left Torrance on its way to the Lockheed Aircraft, Santa Cruz, USAF Missile Base, Harley Hendricks, of the Chesley Transportation Co., had cleared with fire departments in counties and cities through which he would pass and had clearance with the California Highway Patrol. The C.H.P. had routed the load and dispatched a patrol cruiser to escort the first run of its kind in history.

GUIDRY HAS a method of salvaging and refining, through an intricate system of distillation, the alcohol, acetone and actual fuel that is used in cleaning out rocket motors before they are launched. Previously this fluid was waste material and had to be destroyed by burning. By reclaiming the liquid and refining, a rocket fuel that exceeds all government specifications, and even the test spec of the original fuel, is the end results.

Pat Guidry, son of the senior Guidry, is superintendent of the plant and while he is producing a drum an hour at present, expects to reach four times this quota when larger equipment is installed.
